A 200-word summary of your process and additions:

I added in a couple of things for this week's final milestone. I fixed some of my character Jump animations to be a bit more smooth by lowering the transition time to make it start checking to see if the player character was actually jumping much sooner and made that more smooth. I added in the finishing touches on my background animations, and added in another Spiked Mob to the mix to make things a little more challenging. I also added in the moving camera at the start of the scene and made some fixes from the last time I messed things up somehow. I also managed to find and fix an audio bug where if you would replay the level, the audio would be still playing the victory theme. Anyway I had a lot of fun making this and the thing I want to work on next with this game is adding in another level and making use of further pre-fabs. I also created and adjusted the Patrol Points for the Mob2 and fixed the NavMesh to be aligned with the level. I also fixed a visual bug with the health bar where it was not updating after collecting the fruit, even though I swore it was the last time I played.
